Project Idea (attach extra pages if required)

Our project idea is a geolocation Lost and Found application for android.

If it goes well we can do iOS and website.

This application will act as a forum to easily post about items you have lost you would like help finding or items you have found that you would like to return to their rightful owner. The application will have require an e-mail address for posting and replying to posts and will have an option to make an account with e-mail address and password.

The app will respond to your location and show you the lost or found items in the area you are in. There will also be an option to check a different area that you're not in and an option to search for items lost or found.

Users will be able to post on this app that they have lost an item. The post must have a description of the item, where to return the item/who to contact about it and the option to post a picture of the item. Users will also have the option to post that they have found an item. They can post a picture of it but must have a description of the item including where and when it was found.

As an added extra we might add an option for premium users or to buy a premium post to show at the top of all the other normal posts.

The e-mail option is to moderate the posts and ensure nearly all posts are relevant.
